LAST BULLETIN OF YEAR . . .

HAVE A GOOD SUMMER!

The staff and editor of the TCC bulletin would like to wish everyone on campus a most enjoyable summer.

We would also like to congratulate all graduating students. Let us know what happens to you!

And if faculty members run into former students now and then, tell us the news. We like to put news of former TCC students in the bulletin from time to time.

In any case . . . everybody should have a great break coming up.

LOOKS AT VALUE OF DEGREES

Ask almost any cab driver: The value of a college degree is not what it used to be. But it still has solid economic value, according to a study just published by the Conference Board.

According to Leonard Lecht, who prepared the study:

--Persons holding a college degree are only one third as susceptible to unemployment as are others.

--College men over 25 make about 36 percent more than their high school counterparts.

--People receiving college degrees over the next decade should retain an economic advantage because fewer young people--with or without degrees--will be entering the labor market, thanks to the declining birthrate.

--Between 1974 and 1985 about 2.1 million jobs will have opened for college graduates, including some totally new ones--physician's assistant, legal paraprofessional, and many types of managerial and specialized technical positions.

--Professional and technical employment is expected to grow more rapidly than blue-collar employment. Jobs for professional and technical school grads will increase by 29.5 percent between 1974 and 1985, against 20 percent for all occupations. Jobs in teaching, however, will continue to be scarce in the coming decade.
